EDGELEY.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fraser are visiting friends at the Capital.

—Miss Esther Fallis has been engaged as teacher in the public school here until July 1890, at the former salary of $30 per month.
Wise act.

—Mr. John Tait accidentally drove a nail into his shin bone lately, which caused him to be laid up for a few days. We are glad to see him out again.

—Seeding nearly finished. The high wind last week did some damage to rolled grain, which together with frosty nights has kept growing grain back somewhat.

—Mr. J. Howden has located "at the hub" on his homestead, N.W. 4 of 24-19-15. He has a fine band of cattle and horses, and is going extensively into farming, but judging by the size of his cage, "itis no a very big bird" he intends capturing.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cameron have taken up their residence at Edgeley Farm headquarters, which has lately been renovated and enlarged. Their many friends here wish the happy couple long life and prosperity.

KATEPWE.

—Rush of seedling about over.

—No lack of breezy days and no surplus of rainy weather.

—Trees in leaf in April rather an unusual sight for this part of the Territories.

—If you want fish of any kind in any quantity send or come to Mr. Peltier, he'll supply you.

—The very finest dried apples are obtained here by the barrel direct from the products in Ontario.

—Colts and calves are becoming numerous in the valley and fresh green pasture is nearly a month earlier than last year.

—There ought to be a large number of wild goose eggs somewhere in this vicinity as a wonderfully large number of geese seem to spend their time partly on the lake and partly on the adjoining stubble fields.

GRENFIELD.

—The Grousefield Agricultural Society held their first spring show of Stallions and Bulls, on April 27th.

The following horses attracted considerable attention: Mr. N. Cummins showed a splendid non gray horse, Prince 8th, weighing 1875 lbs., which he brought from England with him; in general appearance, he is the best.

INDIAN HEAD.

—Dr. Hunt, from Perth county, Ont., will commence practice here in the course of a few days.

—Walter Goveen, Jno. Copper-thorne and Thomas Armstrong arrived yesterday from Ontario bringing with them two carloads of horses and cattle.

—The municipal council held their monthly meeting at the Commercial hotel on Saturday. The chief business was the re-arrangement of the districts for and the appointment of the pathmasters. A building committee was appointed to select a site and get estimates of plans for a town hall.

—The petition for a foot-bridge across the Qu'Appelle river at Kape-tepe was referred to the bridge and road committee. The finance committee was empowered to correspond with brokers to float the bonds of the new town hall. A proposition was made to remove the present wooden bridge in the town and to replace it with a new stone one. Ultimately it was decided in favor of a stone building, two of the ratepayers remaining neutral. It was then decided to raise the money by debentures bearing interest at not less than eight per cent, per annum.
A long and warm discussion took place as to whether a frame school should be erected at a cost of $600, which would make the repayment of the loan to extend over ten years, or a stone building at a cost of $500, the repayment of the loan to extend over twenty years.
Ultimately it was decided in favor of a stone building, two of the ratepayers remaining neutral.

SALTCOATS.

—The arrival of forty-nine families of Crofters on Friday, 29th inst., numbering 282 persons, created quite a stir, and they are busy since preparing to go on the land assigned them in township 25, ranges 1 and 2, W. 2. About 100 oxen and 50 cows arrived for them a few days ago. A large number of wagons and other implements have also arrived for them. Your correspondent has been informed by Land Commissioner Eden that it is the intention of his department to place them on both odd and even numbered sections in the above mentioned townships, thus enabling them to settle more closely together, and he has so arranged them that families and their friends will be near each other.

—Dr. McPhillips has been here looking after some of the new animals who were ill. Dr. Patrick arrived yesterday, and is very likely to reside here permanently. Rev.
James MacArthur, of Bonhak, accompanied the Crofters here and preached to them in Gaelic twice on Sunday last, and in English on Sunday evening. They seemed pleased and well satisfied.

—A couple of cases of setting fire to the prairie were before Magistrate Sharpe last week, and the guilty parties were let off with $3 and costs. A case of "drunk and disorderly" also handed over $3 and costs, and one of bringing two quarts of alcohol into the territories was mulcted to the tune of $25 and costs.

—Sergt. Richards, and the constable in his charge here, have constructed and equipped an excellent gymnasium for themselves on the banks of the lake, and they and the young men of the town spend many a pleasant half hour exercising their muscles. The Sergeant, himself, is a polished gymnast.

—Mr. T. B. Ferguson came in on Tuesday's express to open the Di-minion Government Lands Office here, which has been closed for the winter in this district. He went to Yorkton last Monday to bring down some office supplies remaining here since last year.

—A wedding has already taken place amongst the Crofters since their arrival.

THE SAFE PLAN.

—When suffering from a troublesome ailment, a backache, rheumatism, sciatica, bronchitis, or other forms of disease or suffering, it is well to use Haworth's Fectoral Balsam to loosen the tension and relax the muscles and tissues.

BROADVIEW.

—The arrival from England of Mr. Wm. Trant and family as settlers at Cetham, near Broadview, N.
W. T., raises the number of children in the parish to sufficient to entitle it to become a school district. In anticipation of this two meetings of ratepayers have been held, at the first of which it was decided to ask the sanction of the Government for the erection of the school. At the second meeting it was reported on what conditions Government sanction would be given, and these being unopposed it was decided to apply for borrowing powers, which have been granted. On Easter Monday a third meeting was held at Mr. E.
Trotter's shanty, presided over by Mr.
Joe Closson. A long discussion took place as to whether a frame school should be erected at a cost of $600, which would make the repayment of the loan to extend over
ten years, or a stone building at a cost of $500, the repayment of the loan to extend over twenty years.

EDMONTON.

From The Bulletin.

—The heavy rain on the 17th inst., did a great deal of good in softening the ground and hastening the growth of grass.

—On Saturday, 12th inst., before Insp. Casey, J.P., James Gibbons, charged with selling intoxicating liquor without the necessary permission, was fined $50 and costs.

—A report in town on the 15th inst., that Lamoureux Bros. saw, shingle and planing mill at their home at the west end of Stoney Plain was burned on the 14th inst. The fire started unaccountably in the mill between four and five o'clock in the morning, and was so far advanced that nothing could be saved from the building. In the progress of the fire some part of the building fell on the safety valve of the boiler causing an explosion which blew one side out of the boiler. The planer and shingle machine were not badly damaged. About 3,000 feet of lumber and 3,000 shingles were burned. The remainder of the lumber was saved by great exertions. The loss is estimated at $5,000. No insurance.

THE REGINA FACTORY.

—Major P. is down with the fever, and the Government at a standstill.
Persons are as healthy as ever, and himself likewise "high" as usual.

His health was quite shaky and wavy, and the doctor had to call him in to take care of him. He is now quite well again.

—While P. is down with the fever,
The Government can't do a thing.
For some time now they were located in the country, and now they are back again.

ULCERATED STOMACH.

—For three years I was unable to work, suffering from an ulcerated stomach. Medical aid having failed, I was told to try Barlock's Balsam of which I took made a permanent cure. This was two years ago and I feel that I have got back to health again.

ROSS AND MELTHORPE.

Mrs. Ross and Melthorpe, Marquette, Ont., are the only ones left in the country.

INATTENTION AND ILL-INTENTION.

"Scrutinies" in Canada Citizen:

Thoughtlessness and viciousness, although in kind distinctly different, often result very similarly. Certain evils that might be hindered by thoughtful precautions, allowed to proceed for want of premeditated, resolute resistance, frequently bring about terrible results.

No direct positive evil intention is at all necessary to sometimes accomplish vast dire disaster—simply drifting inattentively with every moving, evil influence, may terminate all but as ruinously as direct, intentional, injurious, wicked action. Much of the disastrous common drunk-drinking is perpetrated in this thoughtless way. What might be readily discovered to be of evil tendency, if only examined into with prudent consideration, is by inattention allowed ruinously to proceed—

"Evil is wrought for want of thought, As well as want of heart."

"Giving all diligence" can accomplish much that would otherwise remain unaccomplished. Thus, what may not seem to be of any great importance to the thoughtless or unobservant, will be seen to be immensely influential for good or for evil, when thoughtfully thought over, and observantly considered in all its bearings. The Divine direction, "Consider your ways," is not only binding because of supreme authority, but is also absolutely consistent with reason, prudence, true wisdom and right. "The prudent foresight, etc., the simple pass on, etc. So will it be commonly found that from want of thoughtfulness—want of attention, want of consideration, present want of right intention, vast evils result, not very different from the product of positive wrong intention.

It is not essential toward with certainty bringing about all the herders' following the dire drink traffic, that even the dealer should have positively vicious intention; but he should wickedly desire to impoverish and kill, to delanch and destroy, to do all the evil his traffic really does. It is only required that he proceed with the one, central, scalding intention of raking financial gain, reckles, regardless, thoughtless (i.e., inattentive) of the consequences. No doubt, in most cases, this is about, in reality how the evil proceeds, and so in instances where the dealer is conscious of no definite design to do mischief, he may feel aggrieved at being charged with really doing evil which he knows that he never positively intended. The truth is wrought, nevertheless, and he should think of constantly occurring consequences, for such inattention results in the disaster, as if he had done similarly by ill-intention.

The so-called moderate drinker, the strangely incautious advocate of the claimed "liberty to indulge," and the many otherwise admirable people who do not take interest in temperance movements, although some of them feel called upon to take active part in various other benevolent and religious enterprises, even some odd Christian and Sabbath-school workers who treat the special objects of temperance organizations as unworthy of their active co-operation, may not be at all chargeable with any really intentional obstructive design, but may be put down as simply instances of inattention, that has a result not much different from mal-intention. Although not positively doing what they should not have done, they are yet thoughtlessly and inadvertently having undone what they ought to have done plainly, simply, through inattention.

So it comes to pass that when vigorous attention would undoubtedly ward off much of existing misfortune, as well as nullify wicked purposes and attempts, inattention admits evils evading unmolested; and so our sins of omission often bring about sad, similar consequences as do sins called of commission. While positively wicked designs, violently carried into effect, may present more conspicuously extreme enormities of cruelty, crime, and calamity, the less observed, more common oversights, through inattention, are fairly to be accounted as culpable accomplices. This is notably true of the tremendous evils connected with the liquor traffic.

Serious consideration, thoughtful attention, could not long consist with silent apathy or stolid inaction. But rather—"While I was musing the fire burned." The inquiry—What now more can be said or done to get the people to think?—is indeed the pertinent, present, pressing question. There is more than enough in the hideous horrors of the licensed traffic to rouse righteous wrath. The raw material for sound public sentiment is abundant. Even more—much more—very much more must yet be said and done to drag the deeds of darkness to the light of day, and so expose the frightful villainies that patagonetherewith shall no longer be possible, and legal sanction seem to be utterly intolerable. Evidently still inattention is the stubborn soul, just how to successfully break up which is the essential inquiry. Here must the thoughtful patriotic heart and mind earnestly, perseveringly work in diverse and practical, yet increasingly effective, measure for the cure of cursed, callous, common inattention—

To excite fierce fury, and fight
To hasten the triumph of right.

THE FAMOUS CROSS OF CHESTER

Some of the Easter Customs Common to That Quaint Old City.

Every one who visits England goes to see that ancient city of Chester with its "Hows" (covered walks over the ground floor) and its castellated town walls, which give it an antique wholly unique in England. It is also well known, in the age succeeding the conquest, this city was the seat of the despotic military government of Hugh d'Avranches, commonly called, from his exalted character, Hugo Lupus, whose sword is still preserved in the British museum. As the tourist walks from the Watergate along the ancient walls toward the cathedral he cannot fail to notice the beautiful meadow lying between him and the river. It is the Roodeye, or, as formerly written, the Roodsey, the scene of the sports for which Chester was so long famous, eye being a term used for water-meadow, and the legend for the road or cross was the following:

A cross was erected at Hawarden, by which a man was unfortunately killed, and in accordance with the superstition of those days, the cross was made to bear the blame of the accident and was thrown into the river, for which sacrifices set the men received the name of Thirkin Jews. Flouted down the stream, it was taken up at the Roodeye and became very celebrated for the number of miracles it wrought. Sad to relate, after the Reformation it again became the subject of Evangelical service at 17 o'clock except once a month when the Rev. Mr. Martin and His Companion at 11 o'clock, came to the church. Holy Communion, 7 o'clock every fortnight. Daily Morning and Evening prayer. Clergy.—Rev. W. G. Lyon, Rev. W. H. Green.

Methodists to the drapers of six gloves and hand darts of silver, to be given for the best foot race, while the saddlers, who went in procession on horseback, attired in all their bravery, each carrying a spear with a wooden bell decorated with flowers and arms, exchanged their offering for a silver bell, which should be a "reward" for that horse which with speedy running should run before the others."

In the Easter festivity the trumpeter and herald usually proceeded in advance of the procession, and indeed this was the custom at all of the Chester festivities.

We may be sure that the Pace, Pack or Easter eggs were not forgotten by the Chester children. Eggs were in such demand at that season that they always boiled very hard in water colored with red, blue and violet dyes with inscriptions or landscapes traced upon them. These were offered as presents among the "valentines" of the year, but more frequently played with by the boys' balls, for ball playing on Easter Monday was universal in every rank. Even the clergy could not forego its delight, and made this game a part of their service.

Bishops and deacons took the ball into the church, and at the commencement of the antiphone began to dance, throwing the ball to the chorister, who handed it to each other during the time of dancing and the antiphone. All then retired for refreshment. A gammon of bacon was a standard dish, with tansy symbolic of the bitter herbs commanded at the paschal feasts. An old verse commemorates these customs:

At stool ball, Loos, let us play,
For sugar, cases or wine;
Or for a tawny or tawny;
The loss to come or may;
If this my darning may be
At truncheon of the ball,
The wager that shall have, and me
And my misfortunes all.

The churches were adorned at this season like theatres, and crowds poured in to see the sepulchers which were erected representing the whole scene of the Saviour's entombment. A general belief prevailed in those days that our Lord's second coming would be on Easter Eve, hence the sepulchers were watched through the night until 3 in the morning, when two of the older monks would enter and take out a beautiful image of the resurrection, which was elevated before the worshippers during the singing of the anthem "Christus Resurgens." It was then carried to the high altar, and a procession being formed a canopy of velvet was borne over it by ancient gentlemen. They proceeded around the exterior of the church by the light of torches, all singing, rejoicing and praying, until coming again to the high altar it was there placed, to remain until Ascension Day. In many places the monks personated all the characters connected with the event they celebrated, and thus rendered the scene still more theatrical.

Sunday School Lessons.

In this country where settlement is scattered and may have not frequent opportunities of attending public worship, our Bible Lessons will be a great help to the study of one set portion of Scripture for each Sunday. The head of the family should collect its members around him and, if possible, sing some hymns after prayer, then read the portion of Scripture and then let each verse and try to induce each member of the family to talk about it and ask questions. The comments on the lesson we give will help to make the study interesting and be valuable to aid in answering questions. This should not, however, be allowed to interfere with opportunities to attend to preaching service as frequently as possible. To the regular Sunday school teacher and scholar our Bible study column commences itself by experience.

ANointing at Bethany.

LESSON VI, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 12.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv: 1-9—Commit Verses 8, 9—Golden Text, Mark xiv: 8—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.)

1. "After two days was the feast of the pasover and of unleavened bread." The more full statement of Matthew is, "And it came to pass when Jesus had finished all these sayings, He said unto His disciples, ye know that after two days is the feast of the pasover, and the Son of Man is betrayed to be crucified." He was born that He might die, and die that He might be the foundation of the world. He died that He might rise again triumphant over death and the grave, an immortal man, to reign over the house of Jacob forever. He ascended that He might return when He shall have grieved the kingdom, and every step of all the way was close to His from the beginning. His sinless life in a mortal body was nearly over, and after two days He would prove Himself the true Deliverer. He saw it all, and was unmoved, resting in the Father's love, leaving the Father's will unswayed by the joy set before Him. The Passover Lamb had to be chosen on the tenth day of the month and kept till the fourteenth day, that is four days; Jesus was set apart before the foundation of the world, and now four days (4000 days) had passed, and He was about to be slain. (Ex. xii, 3, 6; 1 Pet. 1, 20.)

2. "On the first day, lest there be an uproar of the people." This was a part their help to bring about the sacrifice of Christ at the appointed time. The servants of Satan are often filled with fear, nor sufferings, nor death, but knowing that their lives are hid in Christ in God they are to "desire only" and say, "In God have I put my trust." I am not afraid what man can do unto me." "Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear." (Ps. 117, xvii, 4.)

3. "And being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper." In John xii, 1-6, we find that this supper and anointing at Bethany took place six days before the Passover and before His public entry into Jerusalem.

"As they sat at meat," John tells us that the people were gathered together, and that Lazarus risen from the dead was one of them that sat at the table with Him. Here is boundless resurrection in Him, and on their part loving service and whole-hearted devotion. We would like to know who Simon the leper was, and his relation to this family; we would like to know what Lazarus, who has been three days in the spirit world, talked about; but these things are comparatively unimportant, and let us rather fix our attention upon Jesus and Mary who anointed Him close by.

"There came a woman bearing an alabaster box of ointment of spikenard, very precious, and she brake the box and poured it on His head." John says that she also anointed His feet, and wiped them with her hair; and that the house was filled with the odor of the ointment. We must not get this anointing confused with the anointing in the house of Simon, or the anointing in the garden of Gethsemane, and by a woman whose name we know not. (John xii, 3-5.)

4. "And there were some that had indignation within them, and said, Why was this waste of the ointment made?" That Judas, who, though treasurer of the disciples, was a thief and possessed with the devil, should say this was not strange, for to talk of anything given to the Lord, for Jesus' sake, was to speak of the most ungodly thing, but that he should take it so strange indeed! "It might have been sold for more than three hundred pieces, and have been given to the poor." And they murmured, "miser!" In the parable of Matt. xx, a peacock was a day's wages, so that in that estimate that ointment was equal in value to nearly a year's wages of a laboring man. If the members of that church were to demand that we give unto the Lord Jesus the same special ointment, we would do it, but we would look and consider their position, and when a man makes these words he would be against the power of such a person, but the beginning of such an unwarrented waste of precious money.

5. "Jesus said, Let her alone, why trouble you? She hath wrought a good work on Me." How profound was the Master's approval, how restful His blessed words! What it did not matter who, or how many, did that, it was an act of love, and that unto God. Let no criticism of such acts remain a stain on the Christians under your jurisdiction, to Christ, O Master! rather, but being sure that your motive is right and that love to Him prompted you to seek in all things His glory, go forward in your conduct and that in this meet unto Him. Good works are not those which men, or even Christians of ways approve, but those which are done to please God.

6. "And as they were with you all day, and were weary, they began to desire to go to bed; but Jesus said unto them, Come ye with Me, and I will send you home again early in the morning, with great rewards." The Master's words were true, and when the Master's words are true, we may be sure that they will be fulfilled.

POWER TO PROHIBIT.

The full text of the Northwest Bill introduced into Parliament by Mr. Dewdney has been received. In it three Acts relating to the Northwest are amended and consolidated. The Bill was introduced late in the session, but was objected to on the ground that such legislation should be brought down earlier. As the most important provisions of the Bill would not come into force for two years, it was not really urgent that it should be passed this session and it was withdrawn. No doubt it will be introduced again next session, as is often the case with bills introduced late in the previous session, and withdrawn. Sections 89 to 97 inclusive are the clauses of the Revised Statutes and amending Acts relating to the Prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, and include all the laws of the Northwest on that subject. Section 110 is as follows:

110. Notwithstanding anything in this Act contained the Legislative Assembly may, by ordinance, repeal the provisions of sections twenty-nine to forty-three, both inclusive, and of sections eighty-nine to ninety-seven, also both inclusive, of this Act, and substitute the same or other provisions in lieu thereof; and notwithstanding anything contained in sections fifty-nine, sixty and sixty-one of this Act, may make ordinances in relation to the powers, duties and obligations of the officers therein mentioned, and of their deputies and of the security to be given for the effectual discharge of their respective duties, and for all matters connected therewith:

The above would give the Northwest Legislature power to Prohibit the liquor traffic as well as license it. This is a greater power than is possessed by any of the other provinces. While not really as satisfactorily a manner of settling this great question as a direct vote would be, it at least places the matter squarely before the people. The following provision makes it a direct issue at the polls:

2. Provided however, that no change shall be made by the said Legislative Assembly in the existing law as to intoxicating liquors in the North-West Territories, nor shall any such legislation as is provided in this section in relation to the granting of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors or to the importation, manufacture, possession, barter, sale or disposal thereof be passed, until the dissolution of the present Legislative Assembly has afforded the inhabitants of the North-West Territories an opportunity to express their opinion as to the nature of the legislation on this subject which shall thereafter have effect. Now,

In view of the fact that Prohibition is the principle of the law now in force (though badly administered) the new Bill has respect for the rights of the people and places the matter in their own hands. If they wish Prohibition to remain law, they have but to elect men who will adopt it, and by showing their wishes clearly that they desire it to be effectual no doubt the Legislature will act accordingly. Again, if they elect a majority of license men, we will have a license law, though it is to be hoped that such a calamity may never befall the Northwest.

CANT STAND CRITICISM.

The Regina Journal last week "designed" to devote a column to the criticism of THE PROGRESS on its advocacy of drawing political party lines at the next election to the Northwest Legislature. It keeps as far away from the real question at issue as possible, which would appear to be an evidence that it would like to drop the subject like a hot potato, and divert the discussions into other channels. The Journal appears not to be able to carry on a sensible argument on any question. Just as soon as it takes it is criticised it begins to talk about "fakes," "caterwauling," and other like bilious expressions, which show the lack of argumentative force, but a well developed capacity for throwing dust. None can regret more than we, any disension between two papers that claim to advocate Prohibition, but it will be remembered that the Journal being in Opposition, condemned Lt.-Governor Royal for issuing permits to sell beer, thus making capital from a political party stand point; THE PROGRESS, being a supporter of the Government, but feeling that a principle was at stake for which we had always contended, also condemned His Honor for the issue of those permits. Immediately the Journal attempted by sneers to discredit what we said, evidently not understanding such a spirit of independence. In order that we might not be misunderstood, as we seem to have been, we felt it necessary to more particularly define our stand, which we did by displaying the bold heading "Prohibition First in Politics." Under all the circumstances that did not look like a desire to "trade upon the strong feeling in the Territories favorable to Prohibition." The Journal evidently covets a monopoly of that kind of thing. From the advanced position we held on Prohibition, became our duty to criticize any paper that attempted to raise another issue at the next Territorial elections when the one only great question demanding settlement was Prohibition. This the Journal could not stand, and at once attempts to impugn our motives and pedantically attempts to belittle THE PROGRESS and its influence. The trouble with our contemporaries is that it would like to have performed the impossible feat of riding both the Grit and Prohibition horses, and our strictures have compelled it unwillingly to confine itself to the Grit horse with a little Prohibition plumbum flying from his head. The Journal says it is a "Liberal paper," and that "it never claimed to be a Prohibition paper in a political sense." If it had honestly adhered to that position, our criticism should not have affected it. If it were sufficiently honest itself to silently give credit to others for honesty of purpose than THE PROGRESS would never have questioned its Prohibition pretensions, and Temperance men would be glad of its advocacy of Prohibition as far as it went. Having defined its position, from its own stand point the Journal has the right to advocate party politics in election contests. And from our platform THE PROGRESS has just as good a right to contend that such a course is inimical to the advancement of Prohibition. That our contention is correct is tacitly admitted by our contemporary's vexation and dog-in-the-manger attempts to throw discredit upon our course. Is the Journal not capable of good honest argument? Can it not divest itself of that dustthrowing propensity it so frequently indulges in? If it did it would be entitled to greater respect, and be given credit for more common sense. It is scarcely necessary for us to disclaim a desire either to be a "censor-general" or an "oracle." Such a thought was quite remote from us, but the Journal must have had some such ideas or it would not be so ready to talk that way. As to sailing under true colors; THE PROGRESS colors have always been at the masthead. They are "Prohibition First," Liberal-Conservative party next, and abuse or the impugning of motives or honesty of others never. On the bare telegraphic summary of the Northwest Act introduced into Parliament by Hon. Mr. Dewdney, we said:

"Should the amendments proposed by Mr. Dewdney become law it means that the people of the Northwest will have the license of the nefarious liquor traffic thrust upon them unless they elect a majority of Prohibitionists to the Legislature who will not only prohibit the liquor traffic, but will also insist upon its enforcement."

To this the Journal said:

"It means nothing of the kind. The Legislature will have the right to regulate—in other words—"license"—but not to prohibit. No Province has power to prohibit the liquor traffic. The talk of the people having an opportunity to voice their sentiments on this question at the next election is the veriest bunkum. It is license or nothing—or the Scott Act, which it would appear is worse than nothing when there is no machinery to enforce it."

But if that bill should become law the Northwest Legislature would have the power to Prohibit—see section in another article. I therefore transcribe on receipt of the full text of the Bill that the diagnosis of THE PROGRESS was correct, and the Journal is completely knocked out. Will our contemporaries continue to squirm in the meshes of its party net and contradict and misrepresent? Come Bro. Journal, be manly; be honest; bridle your slang-whanging propensities, and do not puff yourself up with the idea that among the newspapers of the Northwest you possess a monopoly for intelligence and common sense.

Contrary to the first report received here the Wood Mountain and Qu'Appelle Railway has received the usual land grant or 6,400 acres per mile. It is to be hoped the road will be speedily built, and the land grant earned.

Resolutions have been passed in Parliament giving eighty years to a company to complete the Long Lake Railway to some point on the Saskatchewan river near Saskatoon and thence northward to Prince Albert. $50,000 of the above sum will be paid annually on the completion of the railway to the Saskatchewan, and the additional $30,000 when the line is extended to Prince Albert. Unless the line is completed within two years to Prince Albert, the payment of the $50,000 will cease. Besides this the land grant, 6,400 acres a mile, is made.

AWFUL SMASH UP AT HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 28.—A terrible railroad accident occurred on the Grand Trunk near here at 7 o'clock this morning. The St. Louis express jumped the track and the engine ran into a water tank. Two cars were telescoped and immediately took fire. All the dead, 17 in number, have been taken out. The only body identified is that of Gurney, of Chicago. He was instantly buried, but not burned. An Italian, name unknown, was also instantly killed. The other 15 were burned beyond the possibility of identification. About twenty persons were injured, but only one or two seriously. The unfortunate train was running at full speed, when suddenly it left the track and the locomotive pitched into a large water tank. The wreck took fire immediately. Seven out of the ten coaches composing the train were burned. In the ruins of the smoker, searchers discovered seventeen charred bodies. The accident was the worst that has occurred in Canada since the great Des Jardins canal disaster which happened thirty years ago. When the engine struck the tank, the tender leaped completely over both, as also did the baggage car. Thirty-five people were in the smoker, and just about half the number were roasted alive, the car being almost instantly enveloped in flames from the engine. L. S. Gurney, of Chicago, who was in the smoker, was thrown to the side of the track and decapitated.

Old General Host
A battle lost,
And reckoned on a blessing,
Left the field in pain.
What men were slain,
And prisoners and missing.
To his dismay
He learned next day
What havoc had been wrought;
He had, at most,
But half his host

Captives, or sick,
Lost in grim warfare's tide.
Now, if you can,
Tell me, my man,
What troops the general numbered,
When on that night
Dreadful fight
The deadly cannon thunder'd?

MAKING GARDEN PATHS.

Directions for Securing Dry, Firm and Well Made Pathways—The Two Principles.

Four things are more conducive to the thorough enjoyment of a garden than dry, firm and well made pathways. No matter how high the cultivation may be or how flourishing the appearance of the plots and beds, bad walks are an unmitigated nuisance, in wet weather particularly, and ought not to be tolerated under any circumstances.

In a general way there is nothing to exceed a good gravel path, and where one can be employed as a substitute, though an ash walk is not recommended when one can afford better material. Concrete paths are very nice and clean, but apt to crack and break up under the strain of heavy wheeling. Stone flagging, asphaltum and other composition walks are generally put down by those who follow the business, hence there is no need for directions concerning their construction.

There are two principles of draining garden paths, and thus securing a dry bottom, the first being by absorption or percolation, and the second by surface drainage from a raised center to the sides, and thence by means of gratings placed here and there to the drains below.

The first is usually depended upon when a porous surfacing, such as gravel, ashes or ballast is employed, and the second when some impervious substance, such as concrete or tar paving, is made use of. In any case a good foundation is of the utmost importance, without it the surfacing, however carefully put down, will never last any time.

The depth of excavation in making a walk will depend somewhat on the nature of the sub-soil, and also upon the width of the walk. A dry, absorbent sub-soil requires an excavation of less depth and with less attention to drainage than a retentive sub-soil. In a general way it may be advised in forming a gravel walk to take out the soil to two feet of from eighteen inches to two feet in the center, according to the width, and sloping downwards from each side to this point. Along the bottom so formed a line of ordinary two or three inch drain pipes should be laid, allowing for a sufficient fall, of course, to carry off the water. Over this place a layer of broken bricks, cinders or very coarse gravel, then enough material of a somewhat finer description to bring the level up to within about three inches of the ultimate point; and then lay the surface material in a rather wet state, and roll it down to a firm and even surface. This should be rounded off well with the center from four to eight or nine inches higher than the sides, according to the width of the path.

It is a wise plan to go over gravel walks with a heavy roller after the frost is gone to settle them. Once in every three to four years the surface of a gravel walk may be turned, some fresh gravel added and rolled down again to give it new shape.

Lettuce in Hot Bed and Garden.

Sow lettuce in the open ground as early as possible, or, if you have plants from fall sowing, transplant these to a rich soil, giving plenty of room and loose soil. Where hot beds are at hand, let the lettuce be started quite early. Give but little heat and plenty of water and air on the days. It is a good plan to sow a couple of rows thick in the front of the frame, to be used when young. Let the plants in the rest of the bed be about four inches apart. As lettuce runs to seed very early in the season, it is difficult to find a good bed, in many gardens, after warm weather. The remedy is to plant for late use in a cool, partially shaded place, in a rich soil. Water freely.

Lettuce is divided into two classes, the cos, with round head and broad spreading leaves, and the cos with long head and erect narrow leaves. Cabbage varieties are the most tender and buttery, and the cos the most crisp and refreshing. The cabbage form has a sub-division called curled, from the form of its leaves. Vick says of the "New Premium" cabbage lettuce that it is the best variety he has ever grown. Other cabbage sorts recommended by him are "Imperial White Cabbage," a good market kind; "All the Year Round" and "Early Tennis Ball," the latter being one of the earliest of the early heading varieties. "Paris White Cos" is classed among the best of the cos varieties.
